A NEW ATOMIC ELEMENT

Berkeley, California, Jan. 17.—The University of California announced on Tuesday that it had produced a new element, the heaviest known in the periodic table.

The substance, which is No. 85 in the periodic table, was produced by the bombardment of a Uranium-238 nucleus with a neutron. The new element is a solid, and its properties are being studied by the University's Radiation Laboratory.

Alleged Sale Of Military Secrets By Two Generals

Paris, Jan. 17.—The French Prime Minister, M. Georges Bidault, today agreed to Communist demands for a formal inquiry into "the affair of the Generals" in which a man who served two years in prison before the war and got the Legion of Honour in 1948 was alleged to have sold Indo-China secrets.

The two Generals in the case are 59-year-old Georges Marie Revers—relieved of his post as Chief of the Army General Staff last year—and 61-year-old Charles Mast, put on the reserve list at the same time.

Today, M. Bidault told the Assembly that he had ordered a formal inquiry into the alleged sale of military secrets by the two Generals.

INQUIRY DEMANDS

The Communist Party demanded that the Government should appoint a Commission of Inquiry to investigate the alleged sale of military secrets by the two Generals. The Communists also demanded that the Government should appoint a Commission of Inquiry to investigate the alleged sale of military secrets by the two Generals.

COMMUNIST HECKLED

Deputies whistled, booed and shouted "Give names" as M. Bidault, who had been heckled by the Communists, announced that the Government had agreed to the Communist demands for a formal inquiry into the alleged sale of military secrets by the two Generals.

Nationalists Say They Will Sink Defecting CMSNC Ships

Taipei, Formosa, Jan. 18.—Chinese Nationalist planes and warships will sink the thirteen cargo ships of the China Merchants Steam Navigation Company should they attempt to put to sea from Hongkong, the Nationalist Defence Ministry said on Tuesday.

Hongkong reports said on Monday that the thirteen ships of the CMSNC had hoisted the Nationalist flag and raised the red banner of Communist China. A company official said he believed the majority of the Company's 80 other merchant vessels also would transfer allegiance to the Peking government. He indicated the ships of the Ming Sung Industrial Company might follow suit.

The Defence Ministry said it had ordered punitive action against any of the ships trying to leave Hongkong. It is understood that the Navy and Air Force have been ordered to keep strict watch on the ships and to take immediate action if they leave Hongkong waters.

As a result of the Nationalist Defence Ministry's new orders, it is expected that the Hongkong airport authorities will reinstate the regulations, relaxed last week, whereby a plane flying to Hongkong must fly 50 miles to the south and then come in on a prescribed air channel into Kai Tak airport. —United Press.

Soviet Slave Labour Pool

Berlin, Jan. 17.—An official American spokesman stated tonight that a slave labour pool of 400,000 German prisoners of war is being secretly retained in Soviet Russia in violation of a solemn international pledge, according to a careful study made by Berlin welfare and refugee authorities.

The spokesman recalled that at the Moscow conference in 1945 the Soviets established the deadline for the repatriation of all German prisoners of war. The then Soviet Foreign Minister, Mr. V. M. Molotov, had declared earlier that the number of German P.O.W.'s in Russian hands was 600,000. This figure was considerably below the estimates made by German welfare agencies concerned with the search for missing persons. It is, therefore, interesting to note that since then the Russians have returned 1,131,328 Germans from captivity.

Over 200,000 more than Mr. Molotov admitted were held as prisoners. A careful analysis of interrogation reports and other information available to German welfare and refugee agencies indicates that 400,000 German war prisoners are still in Soviet Russia as a slave labour pool, the spokesman said. It is believed that these men are mostly persons who have been convicted of "crimes against humanity" and are to be detained for an indefinite period in Russia, he added.—Reuter.

Peking Radio Criticises Britain

"DOUBLE-DEALING TRICKS"

San Francisco, Jan. 17.—The Chinese Communist radio today flayed Britain's "double-dealing tricks" in the United Nations Security Council where they had abstained from voting on the Russian resolution to oust Dr. T. T. T'sung's Chinese Nationalist delegation, although they had "recently announced their willingness to establish diplomatic relations with the People's Republic of China."

For the fourth consecutive day the radio quoted Chinese Communist Party comment voicing gratitude for the "firm and just action" taken by the Soviet delegate on the Security Council. The radio said that Malles' endeavours to have the Nationalist delegation to the United Nations discredited, "one more proves that the Soviet Union is the best friend of China."

"TRUE COUNTEenance"

The Kwang Ming Daily, organ of the fellow-travelling China Democratic League, says the recent Security Council meetings "gave a chance to recognise the true countenance of the governments of certain countries, especially that of Great Britain." The paper labeled Britain's abstention a "double-faced policy" and a "policy of hypocrisy," according to the Peking radio. The radio also reported that the Chinese Communist Foreign Minister, Gen. Chou En-lai, has acknowledged the recognition notes of Israel, Afghanistan and Finland. In his replies to the Foreign Ministers of the three countries, Gen. Chou "welcomes" their decision to recognise the Peking government, and "expresses thanks for their greetings." But for the first time in replying to recognition notes, Chou failed to use the formula requesting the recognising government to send a delegate to Peking for "negotiations." It was Chou's insistence on these negotiations that aroused the suspicions of Whitehall and resulted in a deadlock of Sino-British relations even after Britain had offered to recognise the Chinese Communist government.—United Press.

Hollywood, Jan. 17.—Bing Crosby's 16-year-old son Gary makes his debut as a crooner tomorrow night. The Columbia Broadcasting System announced that young Crosby would croon on his father's radio programme.—United Press.

Not Quite Clever Enough

Birmingham, Jan. 17.—A 26-year-old daughter and her mother spent three hours, among sales crowds in a store switching price tickets on dresses and coats. But the supervisors at the store were watching them. One of the supervisors told Birmingham magistrates: "I saw the girl put the ticket from a 39 shillings and 11 pence coat on a £3 and three shillings coat. Then she took the coat to an assistant and bought it for 39 shillings and 11 pence." The supervisor said that the girl later paid 19 shillings and 11 pence for a 29 shillings and 11 pence dress by the same means. The two women were each fined £10. "You carefully thought it out before leaving home. You thought you were clever, but you were not clever enough," the Chairman of the Bench told the mother and daughter.—Reuter.

Jet Planes To Race Across The World

London, Jan. 17.—Some of the world's fastest jet planes and newest airliners will race 14,000 miles across the world from Britain to New Zealand in 1953—the longest international air contest ever planned. The question being asked here now is: How near will they come to doing it in one day?

Experts are already predicting that they will do the trip in less than 30 hours flying time compared with the present record of just under 60 hours set up by the Royal Air Force Lancaster "Aries" on an England-Wellington flight in 1940.

The race is being organised with the backing of the New Zealand Government to coincide with an international exhibition at Christchurch, New Zealand, between October, 1953, and April, 1954.

Speed and handicap sections are being provided to suit most types of aircraft and entries have already been promised by British firms and airlines. Other countries have shown immediate interest in the idea and Royal Dutch Airlines, which took a prominent part in the Britain-Australia air race of 1943 marking the centenary of Melbourne, are expected to compete again in 1953.

BIG PRIZES

"Prize money" of £30,000 sterling is being offered to the world's largest flying concerns and best pilots to join in the race. In each section of the race—both the open and handicap events—£10,000 sterling will be the first prize. There will be second prizes of £3,000 sterling, third prizes of £1,000 and fourth prizes of £500. Cups and trophies worth another £1,000 sterling will also be given to the winners.

The route from Britain will be the same for all aircraft in both sections—by way of Basra, Calcutta, and Singapore to a point to be decided, on the East coast of Australia.

The New Zealand Government has announced that it will develop the Christchurch airport of Hurwood, seven miles from the South Island city, to meet international standards. Funds have already been allocated for initial work in this connection. The race is being promoted by an incorporated body in New Zealand, the Canterbury International Air Race Council, with the Royal Aero Club in London—normally official recorder of all such affairs—as assistant organisers and agent.—Reuter.

Greek Election Test

IT was inevitable as well as in keeping with the best democratic principles that after the defeat of the Soviet-supported Communist revolt and the virtual end of the civil war, the Greek people themselves should be afforded the opportunity to decide upon their future course. That opportunity has now been provided by the Greek Cabinet crisis, which, however inopportune at the moment, has led to the appointment of a caretaker Government, the dissolution of Parliament and new national elections on February 19. The fact that such elections can now be held with a fair prospect of success is in itself both evidence of Greece's return to more normal conditions and a tribute to the Truman Doctrine, which made this possible. There are some misgivings whether the date chosen is the best possible, for some sections of the country are likely to be snowbound at that time and others are still under martial law. But by far the greater part of the country is now safe and free. Much of the war-wrecked economy has been restored; the great majority of the refugees have been returned to their homes; communications have been reopened; the foreign troops have left the country, and even the Greek Army is being reduced. As a result both the Liberals and the Conservatives agree that the country is psychologically prepared for new elections, and the Soviet Government itself has been demanding them. But the new elections, which will be held this time without the supervision of official foreign observers, will also provide the crucial test as to how effectively the Greeks themselves can follow the democratic processes. If the elections are fair and square and free, and if the results are above all suspicion and challenge, they will not only provide a convincing answer to the Soviet-Communist denunciations of the present Government as a "monarcho-fascist" regime but will also give new inspiration to all liberty-loving elements among Greece's Communist-dominated neighbours. The free character of the election cannot be impugned because of the continued prohibition of the Communist party, which remains in open rebellion against the existing order and continues to maintain armed forces abroad which it could disperse throughout the country in the guise of election agitators to stir up new revolts. But the election results could be compromised by personal ambitions, intrigues and machinations, for which Greece has always furnished a fertile soil and which seem to be a part of the efforts to make Field Marshal Papagos the supreme arbiter of the country's destiny. It must be hoped that Greece's political leaders will remain conscious of their grave responsibility and vindicate the aid extended to their country by the United States, not only by defeating the Communist revolt but also by making Greece truly free and democratic.

U.S. Battleship Runs Aground

Norfolk, Virginia, Jan. 17.—The battleship Missouri ran aground today in Chesapeake Bay 1 1/2 miles Northeast of Old Point Comfort.

The warship, on whose deck the formal Japanese surrender took place in Tokyo Bay, is the only United States battleship in active service. Naval spokesmen had no explanation for the accident.

Twelve tugs were unable to pull the big ship free. A Naval spokesman said there was little hope of refloating her before high tide.—Associated Press.

Hard Going For Rescue Workers

Mahanoy City, Pennsylvania, Jan. 17.—Rescue workers huddled through a loose slide rock that threatened to collapse on them today got within 12 feet of a fellow miner trapped 120 feet below ground for five days. Working in a tunnel, large enough for only one man at a time, the rescue team reported little hope that the man, 25-year-old Edward Burda, would be found alive.

He and his brother Joseph were caught by a slide last Friday. Joseph was rescued on Sunday from a spot much higher in the shaft.—Reuter.

The Modern Version Of Grandma's Horsehair Fabric

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY

New York. GRANDMOTHER never would recognise the horsehair fabric or the pulley light in the sleek modern versions just displayed by Edith Hernandez, furniture designer.

The old overhead gas light that used to pull down on a chain so it could be lighted has been turned into a modern brass and glass electric fixture by designer Harry Gitter. It slides up and down by means of a brass counter weight.

Plastic upholstery in a surprisingly wide range of colours and patterns has just been put on the market. With a dulled finish and a full range of colours, the manufacturers have managed to reproduce regular fabric effects.

One of the new patterns is a satin-stripe effect in tones of blue, gray and maroon. Another combination displayed on a modern sofa is a floral pattern with an aqua blue background and shades of brown in the print. Sophisticated designs are used in the plastic upholstery as well as gay chintz copies.

Manufacturers will use it on ready-made furniture.

Right Way To Wash Corduroy

By ELEANOR ROSS

MUCH of the lovely, lustrous corduroy in yardage is washable. If the tag reads "wet-dyed" and "pre-shrunk," then it is all right to go ahead. Colours are fast whether they be the deep glowing dark shades of the "paler" flannels. Especially nice for children is a washable corduroy.

Wet-dyed corduroys go into hot water, in fact, water as hot as you use with regular cotton fabrics. If machine washed, use your usual laundry soap or detergent. Try a 5 minute wash period. It is generally sufficient. Loosen wrinkles, rolls to avoid the crushing or wringing that is a death to napped fabrics. If a summer dryer is used, don't let it run longer than you need to get the water out.

After the garments have been washed and rinsed and are ready to hang up, go to it and give them a ready vigorous shake. Just as you do to bath towels. It will be a treat to see how the fabric perks up, becomes fluffy and how the wrinkles shake themselves away. Shape the garment carefully by smoothing and straightening before hanging to dry. Place folded suits and jackets on shaped hangers to dry.

If you don't have a shaking job, there need be little more. There should be no need to iron children's play clothes of every day casual clothes at all. If something has to be pressed, use light pressure on the iron and a professional pressing method, which means the iron up and down rather than gliding it.

Dresses With Built-in Undies

By GLORIA YARBROUGH

HOLLYWOOD DRESSES with built-in undies are the Polish design. Marlene Dietrich wore one.

When bra and slip are part of the dress, says the Polish designer, there is no problem of finding appropriate underclothing to match the gown.

These are chiefly cocktail or dinner frocks intended for dry cleaning.

Madame, who clothes such screen attractions as Bette Midler, has designed a dress for Mrs. Ray Mendenhall and Jean Fontaine has just returned from a style viewing trip to France.

"There are reports," says the French designer, "that the American designers can afford the creations of their French-American boy."

Too Extreme

Designers, too, are much too extreme in their designs. "French women," don't mind having yards of material flowing around them, because they aren't figure-conscious like American women. Of course, fashions aren't created for young girls with nice figures. The models are the style leaders.

Sometimes, Madame shows all her dresses herself.

"I can model about 80 dresses in 45 minutes," the vivacious blonde exclaimed, "because all are the step-in type, with long zippers."

You don't need a pin-up figure to look well dressed, says Dorothy O'Hara, the former film designer. The former film designer thinks any woman, fat or lean, can look smart if she takes advantage of a few tricks used in film studios.

"A common mistake is the use of the round waistline or belt," she says. "The round line cuts the figure in half, making the short woman look even shorter and plumper."

"V-shaped waistlines, in addition to making a woman look taller, are adaptable to both short-waisted and long-waisted types. The V-neckline likewise adds to the illusion of a long unbroken line."

Flattering To Most

"The slim skirt!" says Dorothy, "is the most flattering to most women. A peplum over the hips gives the thin girl curves, hides the plump girl's poundage. An inverted pleat in the skirt allows a girl to walk normally without detracting from the slim waistline effect."

"Actresses," she points out, "must have costumes they can get into quickly without spilling make up and hairdos. They use full-length zippers so that they can slip into their dresses."

Associated Press.

Sheer Horsehair

The sheer horsehair is available by the yard in New York markets and it has been turned into curtains simply by sewing strips of it together so the seams give a horizontal striped effect.

Mrs. Hernandez and her husband, William, formerly designed both furniture and fabrics. That won citations of merit in the design competition sponsored by the American Institute of Decorators. In their new shop, they sell both their own designs and the work of other modern designers.

DAYTIME ELEGANCE

By VERA WINSTON

BEAUTIFUL, bright vibrant colours and soft pastels, that's the ticket now in wool jersey. Rather than the neutral grays of yore, a rich, glowing amethyst hue marks this picture at left) handsome go-anywhere dress of wool jersey. A good choice for the stay-at-home or the traveller. Three jewelled buttons secure the collarless V neckline. The bodice is seamed through the midriff and released for fullness over the bust. Inside tucks below the waist are released into gentle folds at the centre front of the skirt. In back the skirt is gored.

Inky black woolen and soft black velvet combine to make this a dress of understated elegance and charm (centre picture). It relies entirely on the clever placement of the subtle which is handled in an adaptation of a haremlike effect. The smart severity is relieved by silver rimmed buttons and the straight slim silhouette is broken by the suggestion of a peg-top achieved by gathers at the waist.

Warmth and good looks are what a gal wants from her woolen frocks. And that's what she gets in this dress at right. Of tulle sheer woolen, it has a neat little black velvet collar below which three little cut-outs lend an unexpected and festive air. The otherwise simple bodice has easy five-eighths length sleeves. The bias skirt has two self-folds banding the hem. The belt is of crushed black velvet.

The Perfect Way to Relax

A hot bath is the perfect way to relax. For added luxury, use a fragrant water-softener, and afterwards, dust on powder liberally.

By HELEN FOLLETT

TEN minutes of tubbing every morning is of cosmetic value. The smart woman knows that this is a health measure and a pleasure. So luxurious, so lazy, so incident of one's life. Let the telephone ring. You can't answer. You are apart and away from your own little world, and that's grand. Lie in the warm water, relax, let your soul be at peace.

Before starting in on steaming and relaxing, bathe your face, by thoroughly, and apply a light cream. The warm air, combined with the fragrant lubricant, will dig out any bits of atmosphere dust that may have lodged in the pores of your skin. Soften the bath water. You will not want various preparations compounded for this purpose. Tablets, bath salts, lotions. Provide yourself with a first class bath brush. Don't economize on this item. Poor brushes aren't worth carrying home.

There are endless additions to the bath routine that are fun. Oils for the entire body, which, fractioned and massaged into the skin, furnish recompense for the natural oils that have disappeared. The woman who suffers from itching skin surface after the bath should not fail to use one of these delightful toiletries.

If the skin is not dry, one can use a tonic lotion, a sort of relaxative, to ease the eczema that whisks away goose flesh, if it happens to be present, and leaves a refreshing aroma.

The girl who goes without stockings will need to rub a cream into her legs. If the skin is to carry a clear, healthy look, in cold weather, when one wears the sheaviest hose, legs may need a little cosmetic attention.

And don't forget foot powder, especially if you have the kind of trotters that seem to run a temperature after you have been hoofing it for some time. Rub it between your toes, press it on the soles of your feet, sprinkle it in your shoes.

Let's Eat

BY IDA BAILEY ALLEN

Dinner of Chinese Dishes

HERE is a menu from a Chinese eating place in Canton which is typical of South China cookery. It presents an interesting contrast to the European menu from Hong Kong we discussed yesterday. Our friend, Mr. L. G. Shreve, translated it for me.

"When you sit down, a dish of dried watermelon seeds is brought for you to nibble. The first course is a choice of either fish soup or shark's fin, both great delicacies.

"Then comes an extensive array of substantial meat, poultry, fish, egg and vegetable dishes, all served at the same time. You can have them all, or as many as you like. These would include sweet and sour pork, chicken with almonds, egg roll, eggs, foo-yung, fried rice with pork, or shrimp or ham, fried soft noodles, rice, roast duck, baked fish with a delicious sauce, mustard greens, bitset, which is a kind of Chinese cabbage, and peas with edible pods.

"Many condiments are passed, among them, coarse powdered ginger used for hot seasoning, sharp table mustard, and soy-sauce, which is called 'a salt'. All foods are cut in small bite-sized pieces, and eaten with chopsticks. Each food comes to the table boiling hot in a large dish, and the guests help themselves to whatever they like, using a bowl of rice as the accompaniment, as we might use bread."

Special Order

"Is there any special order in which these foods are served, Madame?"

"No, except the fish, which is served during the latter part of the meal."

"How about the soups, Madame?"

"They are always served last, but the soup is the only exception."

"When do they eat dessert?"

"Dessert is not served. Fruit or sweets are eaten between times."

"And tea is throughout the meal?"

"Sometimes, but more often at the end. Rice wine is often served with the meal."

"Are there no cold foods, Madame?"

"No, foods in China are served hot. And salads are not used. However, they compensate for this by cooking their vegetables only a short time and using all the cooking liquid. They use quantities of soy beans in many ways, and soy beans are the only vegetable food that is comparable to milk in nutritive value. They even make a 'milk' from soy beans which is used to feed babies who cannot be breast fed."

Agricultural Improvement

"There is a desperate need in China today for education in agricultural improvement. The animal husbandry, sanitation, better health and child care. It was to put in effect an audio-visual education plan to teach these subjects that Mr. Shreve went to China. This is a project under the auspices of the Joint Commission on Rural Reconstruction.

"Radio was used as far as possible. But the simplest way to reach the vast population by means of posters, which were distributed in market places, on village walls and in schools. There were lots of comics used—the Chinese children respond to them, just as our children do in this country, and they hope to reach the parents through the child."

"By the way, Madame, what was the favourite dish of our friend?"

"The sweet and sour pork I've put in today's menu."

Dinner of Chinese Dishes

Chicken Mushroom Soup
Sweet and Sour Pork
Fried Soft Noodles
Preserved Kumquats
Tea

Include enriched bread or rolls with butter or margarine.

All Measurements Are Level Unless Specified

Chicken Mushroom Soup

To 3 c. chicken broth (or use 1 lb. concentrated chicken broth), add 1 lb. water and 1 chicken bouillon cube, add 2 tsp. diced cooked chicken, ¼ c. sliced mushrooms, salt and pepper to taste, and ½ tsp. gourmet powder (or use monosodium glutamate). Heat to boiling point and serve.

Sweet and Sour Pork

Cut 1 lb. lean pork into 1 in. cubes. Pound the pieces lightly to flatten them. Next beat 1 egg with 2½ tsp. cornstarch. Dip the pork in this, and fry in deep hot fat, 375 F., until lightly browned. Meantime make the sweet-sour sauce. Add to the pork after it is fried; let stand 2 or 3 min. to season and serve with fried soft noodles or rice.

Sweet-Sour Sauce for Pork: Combine ¼ c. sugar and ¼ c. cider vinegar in a saucepan. Add ½ c. water, ¼ tsp. salt and 1 large coriander seed pepper cut into ½ in. squares. Stir until boiling; boil 1 min. To thicken, blend 2 tsp. cornstarch with ½ tsp. cold water; add to the sauce and stir constantly 2 min. Then add 2 slices thinned pineapple cut into 8 sections each. Season with ½ tsp. soy sauce if convenient.

Fried Soft Noodles

Boil ½ lb. fine egg noodles. Drain thoroughly and chill. In a preheated large heavy frying pan, put 3 tbsp. cooking oil. Add the noodles and slowly fry over a moderate heat until lightly browned. Then turn with a pancake turner to brown the other side.

Suggestion of the Chef

Instead of preserved Kumquats for a Chinese dinner you could substitute banana-orange bowl. In this case, pare 4 good-sized oranges and slice crosswise. Arrange in a glass bowl in layer with thin-slices of banana (2 will be enough) and ½ c. small moist raisins. Over the top pour 1 tsp. lemon juice combined with 1 tsp. honey. Garnish with raisins. Cover and chill at least 1 hr.

BRAYING FOR SAFETY—Muffin, the puppet mule of British television fame, joins the anti-street accident campaign in London. Operated by Ann Hogarth, the children's favourite urged youngsters to be particularly careful when crossing streets. And if anyone can influence them, it should be the popular Muffin.

GETTING A LATE START—Just before their wedding in Cleveland, Ohio, John C. Hanson, 97, dictated to his nurse, Hannah Louise Garford, 56, who shortly after took over the duties of boss. The bride nursed Hanson after he had wrenched his back, and the romance then began.

HAPPY CARGO—Second Officer Walter D. Meyer, in New York, receives part of the cargo of 60 crates of toys and clothing for overseas war orphans. Alice Blue, in a Dutch outfit; Sally Robinson, in a Belgian costume, and Rinate Stara, who wears Czechoslovakian dress, are seeing the shipment off.

NO WONDER!—Along with its oranges, Sarasota, Florida, boasts of its feminine pulchritude. And this picture of Ann Williamson proves it has reason to do so.

AFTER THE STORM—Heavy storms which lashed all over the Pacific Northwest washed away a 200-foot span of this bridge across the Capilano River, near Vancouver, B.C. The bridge connecting the two parts of that city was the only link between them.

PROUD POOCH—This Irish setter is Knights-croft Tanya, displaying her diploma in New York. The students of this exclusive canine school had to pass a test before diplomas were handed out.

"SHOCK" RESULTS LIKELY IN LEAGUE PROGRAMME

London, Jan. 17.—Many of the teams battling for points in Saturday's English League programme face important Cup matches the following week. Players with the Cup "on their minds" are usually careful about risking injury, and teams often lapse unaccountably into a defensive attitude.

This unpredictable factor may help in the production of "shock" results on Saturday.

One of the games in which it could influence the trend of the play is Burnley's home match against West Bromwich Albion. Burnley, well up in the First Division table, seem very likely to win on form, but they are still in the Cup, while West Bromwich Albion are out of it.

Burnley's sound defence gives little away and they should win unless the immunity of a Cup affects their play.

LONDON RIVALS MEET

The meeting of the London rivals Chelsea and Fulham, may prove one of the closest struggles of the day.

In the Premier Division, Home advantage does not count for much in these matches, where the visiting team has the support of a big band of followers.

Famous Amateur Soccer Club To Be Revived Next Season

BY ARCHIE QUICK

Good news for amateur Soccer is that the famous London Caledonians Football Club is to be revived next season. A ground has been obtained in suburban London and application is to be made for re-entry to the Isthmian League.

The "Caledons" who have produced such great players of the past as Andy Sloan, John Noble and the brothers Eric and Basil Gates, closed down during the War, but re-started afterwards, sharing a ground with Tufnell Park.

They found it impossible to carry on, however, after only one season, and then, after a year, they gave up the idea of re-starting.

JOHN PELL OF CUE FAME IS ALL OF 95

Hail at the turn of the mid-century a man celebrating his 95th birthday who was in his games-playing prime long before the century began. None other than William John Pell, of Hove—not to be confused, please, with a certain other John Pell.

Not know Pell, you youngsters? In his day he was a celebrity—the great billiards champion whose fine touch was so unfailing that the laws of billiards had to be altered to prevent him from scoring too many.

He developed the "spot stroke"—the putting of the cue at the top of the table, which he carried on like a running deer. Back in 1880 he made his biggest break, 3,304, largely by using this stroke—he put the red down 400 consecutive times. His stature? Five feet.

SON AGED 73

I invited one of my young colleagues, Dennis Lewis, who, not unnaturally, had never heard of Pell, to make his acquaintance over the telephone.

He mentioned that the birthday party would include two sons and a daughter, two grand-children and two great-grand-children. A granddaughter and her husband came from Switzerland for the occasion.

The cake had 95 candles and for every 10 years.

Mr Pell is still in good health, does the daily shopping and until recently was a keen motorist. He has held a licence since 1908.

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE

Army Colonel Uses His Head on Hand

BY WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY

I RECENTLY attended a meeting at the Army and Navy Club in Washington with Dr. Earl J. McGrath, Commissioner of Education, and Dr. R. L. Grigby, his assistant. We were discussing the problem of the education of the American war orphan, a hobby of mine.

After the luncheon I dropped into the card room at the club, and found games at bridge, canasta and gin running all in progress. I picked up a problem or two for my canasta column, then pulled up a chair behind Col. E. B. Gray, who has been an ardent bridge fan for years. Poor health, aside, the colonel's tournament activities but he still enjoys rubber bridge at the club.

It is interesting to watch a military man play bridge because he is almost invariably a careful strategist. Many of us would make a mistake on a day's hand, but not Colonel

Gray. He won the spot lead of the five of diamonds, a dummy with the king then led a small heart, and East jumped up with the ace. Would you follow with the four-put if you were declarer? I told you it was easy to make a mistake on the hand.

The colonel thought for a while. Why had East jumped up with the ace of heart? He finally decided that it had been either a blank ace on the ace and jack, and when I saw the colonel play the ten of hearts from his hand instead of the four, I knew he was a bridge

East returned another diamond, which had to be won by dummy with the ace. The colonel led a club back to his queen, cashed the king of hearts, and East's jack fell. Now the colonel had the four of hearts to play to dummy, finesse the eight spot and cash the heart queen.

If he had played the four of hearts under the ace, he could have cashed the king and ten, but he would have had no entry to get into dummy to make the queen, the needed ninth trick.

Transfer Of Authority In Somaliland

Discussions Open In Rome

Rome, Jan. 17.—Mr. John Fletcher Cooke, the British delegate to the Trusteeship Council, which is drafting an agreement with Italy for the administration of Somaliland, today told the Committee that negotiations had already begun in Rome between Italy and Britain for the transfer of authority in the territory.

Mr. Fletcher Cooke stated: "My Government regards it as most important and indeed essential that the Italian Government should take over the administration of the territory as soon as may be practicable. The Committee today began its second reading of the draft agreement and adopted most of the 21 articles of which it is composed. It is expected that the Committee will complete both the remaining articles of the agreement and the 10 articles of the Italian Constitution."

An additional article proposed by the British delegate concerning the restoration of Italian law in the territory, which began here on January 19.

The Italian delegate, Signor Enrico Conelli, declared that Italy reserved her position on the proposed article on the ground that conditions prevailed by it did not exist. He added that the inclusion of such an article was beyond the competence of the Committee.

"On behalf of my Government," he declared, "I cannot accept this article which sets a precedent for such territories as Ethiopia and Libya. It means the implementation of clauses of the Italian peace treaty in a territory which will be administered on behalf of the United Nations and not a sovereign territory such as Italy."

"I am not qualified to discuss such a proposal at this time." The last article approved by the committee today was the final article which would commence from the date of the approval of the trusteeship agreement by the General Assembly. -Reuter.

Battle Of The Lamp

The "Battle of the Lamp" is over, and the cause of the trouble is now in St. Martin's Church, Birmingham. Two years ago Mr. W. T. Hickman, a Birmingham jeweller, who served with the 3rd Bn. Royal Warwickshire Regiment, made a lamp for the Old Comrades' Association. Apart from its annual use in the "Absent Comrades" toast, the lamp was to be housed in the City Museum, but it was discovered this could not be done until a purchase tax was paid. The Board of Trade pointed out that if the lamp was placed in a church, no tax would have to be paid. It is now going to stand in St. Martin's.

STAFF CUT AT SPANDAU PROPOSED

Berlin, Jan. 17.—Draught cuts in staff are proposed at Spandau Prison, Berlin, where the seven top Nazi war criminals are detained. A spokesman for the West Berlin City Administration today said that there would be a reduction of staff and a cut in the cost of food and other necessities for the prisoners.

This was decided after consultation with the Western Allied authorities, who agreed that the West Berlin authorities should reduce the cost of the prisoners' food and other necessities to 250,000 Deutschmarks a month.

However, the Prison staff insisted on a 10 per cent increase in their wages. The Prison authorities refused to agree to this, and the matter is now being referred to the courts. The Prison authorities also insisted on a 10 per cent increase in the wages of the prison guards, but this was also refused.

The seven top Nazi war criminals are: Rudolf Hess, Eric Raeder, Karl Doenitz, Hermann Goerring, Hans Frank, Wilhelm Keitel and Albert Speer. -Reuter.

THREAT FROM SAME SOURCE

Hamburg, Jan. 17.—Sir Brian Robertson, British High Commissioner for Germany, told a German audience here tonight that it would be wise for both Great Britain and Germany to forget their differences in face of a common peril.

"Both your country and mine, both your freedom and my freedom, your religion and my religion, and your civilization and my civilization are threatened from the same source," General Robertson said. -Reuter.

Albania Asked To Pay Up

The destroyers were damaged by mines in the Corfu Channel with the loss of many lives. -Reuter.

No Secret Pact Over The Saar

Washington, Jan. 17.—The State Department spokesman, Mr. Michael McDermott, today denied knowledge of any "secret agreement or understanding" between the United States, France and Britain over the Saar.

Press dispatches from London reported that the three Powers agreed, during the meeting of the Western Foreign Ministers in Paris in November, to detach the Saar from Germany and give it semi-independence.

Mr. McDermott said: "The only mention of the Saar at the November meeting occurred when Mr. Schuman reported the tentative suggestion of the Council of Europe that the Saar be extended an invitation to become an associate member."

Secretary of State Dean Acheson raised no objection to this on the understanding that such action would not prejudice the final decision with respect to the Saar at the final peace settlement.

Mr. McDermott said he did not know why this incident was not mentioned in the communiqué issued following the conference, but other officials said it might have been considered to give the matter further consideration.

It was pointed out that the Council had not yet formally acted on the Saar's membership.

Mr. McDermott refused to comment on the United States position of a reported French plan to take a 50-year lease on the Saar coal mines, but he would look into the matter and might have some comment later. -United Press.

INTELLIGENCE TEST SOLUTION:

Let m be the number of members of the Squad prior to Boop's defection. The members of the Squad are chosen (say a, b, c) the four can be Boop or one of (m-4) others. If the latter is a, the Squad is a, b, c, d. This is the same as if the original three had been, say, b, c and d, and c the one chosen from the (m-4) others. Hence a, b, c and one other can be Boop in (m-4)/4 times as likely as a, b, c and Boop. So (m-4) = 4, i.e., m=10.

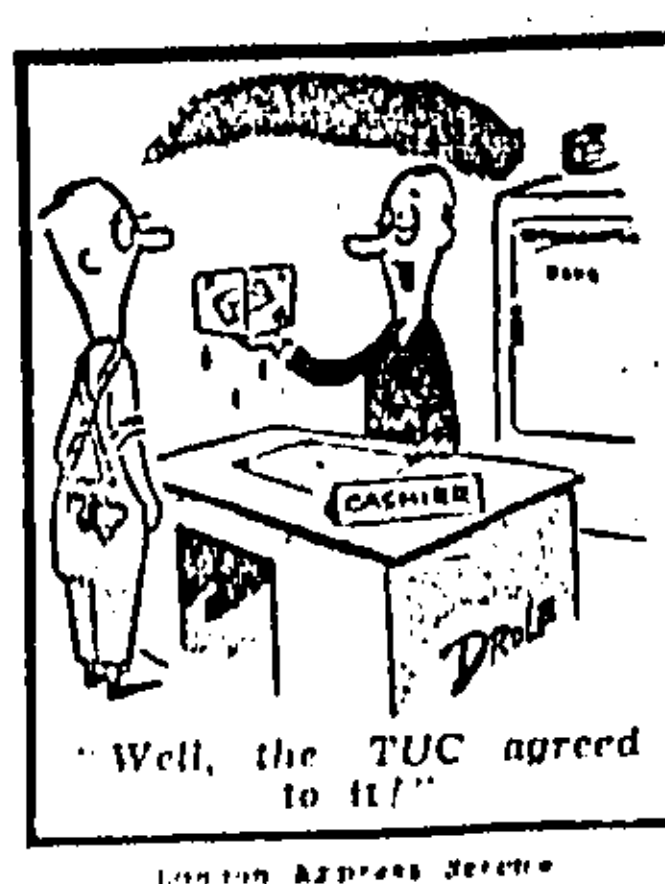

And there are now nine members of the Squad.

Nationalist Threat To 13 CMSNC
Vessels

Taipei, Formosa, Jan. 18.—Chinese Nationalist planes and warships will sink the thirteen cargo ships of the China Merchants Steam Navigation Company should they attempt to put to sea from Hongkong, the Nationalist Defence Ministry said on Thursday.

Hongkong reports said on Monday that the thirteen ships of the CMSNC, bound down the Nationalist flag, and raised the red banner of Communist China. A company official said he believed the majority of the Chinese navy, 300 other merchant vessels also would leave for allegiance to the Peking government. He indicated the ships of the Ming Seng Industries Company might follow suit.

The Defence Ministry said it had ordered "prompt action" against any of the ships found to leave Hongkong.

It is understood that the Navy and Air Force have been ordered to keep a close watch on the ships and to take immediate action if they leave Hongkong waters.

As a result of the Nationalist Defence Ministry's new orders, it is expected that the Hongkong airport authorities will reinstate the regulations relaxed last week, whereby a plane flying to Hongkong must fly 50 miles to the south and then come in on a prescribed air channel into Kai Tak airfield. A NEW ATOMIC
ELEMENT

Berkeley, California, Jan. 17.—The University of California announced on Tuesday that it had produced a new element, the heaviest known on the periodic scale.

The substance, which is No. 85 in the series, is the fifth element produced by the cyclotron at the University's Radiation Laboratory.

Scientists and theoretical considerations ruled out the new element's use in the production of atomic weapons.

The University announced that the new element is not a new element as such, but that it has been done so by the "transmutation" of other elements.

EDITORIAL

Greek Election Test

It was inevitable as well as in keeping with the best democratic principles that after the defeat of the Soviet-supported Communist revolt and the virtual end of the civil war, the Greek people themselves should be afforded the opportunity to decide upon their future course. That opportunity has now been provided by the Greek Cabinet crisis, which, however inopportune at the moment, has led to the appointment of a caretaker Government, the dissolution of Parliament and new national elections on February 19. The fact that such elections can now be held with a fair prospect of success is in itself both evidence of Greece's return to more normal conditions and a tribute to the Truman Doctrine, which made this possible. There are some misgivings whether the date chosen is the best possible, for some sections of the country are likely to be snowbound at that time and others are still under martial law. But by far the greater part of the country is now safe and free. Much of the war-torn economy has been restored; the great majority of the refugees have been returned to their homes; communications have been reopened; the foreign troops have left the country, and even the Greek Army is being reduced. As a result both the Liberals and the Conservatives agree that the country is psychologically prepared for new elections, and the Soviet Government itself has been demanding them. But the new elections, which will be held this time without the supervision of official foreign observers, will also provide the crucial test as to how effectively the Greeks themselves can follow the democratic processes. If the elections are fair and square and free, and if the results are above all suspicion and challenge, they will not only provide a convincing answer to the Soviet-Communist denunciations of the present Government as a "monarcho-fascist" regime but will also give new inspiration to all liberty-loving elements among Greece's Communist-dominated neighbours. The free character of the election cannot be impugned because of the continued prohibition of the Communist party, which remains in open rebellion against the existing order and continues to maintain armed forces abroad which it could disperse throughout the country in the guise of election agitators to stir up new revolts. But the election results could be compromised by personal ambitions, intrigues and machinations, for which Greece has always furnished a fertile soil and which seem to be astir again in the efforts to make Field Marshal Papagos the supreme arbiter of the country's destiny. It must be hoped that Greece's political leaders will remain conscious of their grave responsibility and vindicate the aid extended to their country by the United States, not only by defeating the Communist revolt but also by making Greece truly free and democratic.

Alleged Sale Of Military
Secrets By Two Generals

Paris, Jan. 17.—The French Prime Minister, M. Georges Bidault, today agreed to Communist demands for a formal inquiry into "the affair of the Generals" in which a man who served two years in prison before the war and got the Legion of Honour in 1948 was alleged to have sold Indo-China secrets.

The two Generals in the case are 59-year-old Georges Marie Revers, relieved of his post as Chief of the Army General Staff last year—and 61-year-old Charles Mast, put on the reserve list at the same time.

Today, M. Bidault told the Assembly that no definite proof had been established against either of them.

The case is the result of a top-secret report on the late and alleged spy, Roger Peyrefitte, a French journalist and writer, who was arrested in 1948 when he was alleged to have sold secrets to the Communists.

Revers, who was a member of the French General Staff, was relieved of his post in 1948 when he was alleged to have sold secrets to the Communists.

The report was said to have criticised French policy in Indo-China and suggested that the Civilian High Commissioner, M. Leon Duthoit, should be replaced by General Mast.

INQUIRY DEMANDS

On December 7 General Revers was relieved of his post as Chief of the Army General Staff. Mast was put on the reserve list at the same time.

After newspaper demands for an inquiry, General Mast asked for a Court of Honour to be set up.

General Revers, denied that he had sold secrets, and said that he had been arrested in 1948 when he was alleged to have sold secrets to the Communists.

M. Bidault said today that the case had been referred to the Government's debarment and conduct in this "affair of the Generals".

The Government accepted the Communist request for a Parliamentary Inquiry Commission.

COMMUNIST HECKLED

Deputies whistled, howled and sang "Gue" during the Communist motion calling for an inquiry into the "affair of the Generals".

But put to be the Communist motion calling for an inquiry into the "affair of the Generals".

A Government motion, passed by 347 votes to 207, with 30 abstentions, called for the setting up of a Parliamentary Commission of four members of the Assembly's Commission of Justice, four members of the Overseas Territories' Commission and four members of the National Defence Commission.—Reuter.

U.S. Battleship
Runs Aground

Norfolk, Virginia, Jan. 17.—The battleship Missouri ran aground today in Chesapeake Bay 1½ miles Northeast of Old Point Comfort.

The warship, on whose deck the formal Japanese surrender took place in Tokyo Bay, is the only United States battleship in active service. Naval spokesman had no explanation for the accident.

Twelve tugs were unable to pull the big ship free, with 30 crew members and little hope of refloating her before high tide.—Associated Press.

STOP PRESS

RAIN DELAYS
VALLEY RACES

Because of the heavy rainstorm between 3 and 3.30 p.m., the Jockey Club stewards found it necessary to delay resumption of racing after the Jockey Cup until 4 o'clock.

It rained so heavily during the three o'clock race that it was practically impossible to determine the distances between the first, second and third ponies as they went past the winning post.

ANNUAL RACING CARNIVAL

Only Two Starters For
Ladies' PurseSmall Dividends:
Favourites Win

When the annual racing carnival was resumed this morning sunny skies gave away after tiffin to rain clouds, and at 3 o'clock there was every indication that the last part of the programme would be carried out in wet conditions.

There was no outstanding feature about the pre-tiffin races, apart from the fact that only two ponies faced the starter in the Ladies' Purse event. Bambi, ridden by H. C. Pih, and Strato Cruiser, ridden by H. T. Alexander, fought out the seven furlong race, with Bambi finishing an easy winner.

The betting public did not go astray in any of the early races, and in consequence dividends were small.

The Jockey Cup, the first event after tiffin, attracted an entry of eight ponies. In this traditional race, restricted to riders who had not won ten races anywhere at any time, the jockeys were not allowed either whips or spurs.

Here are the results of the first five races.

The Jockey Cup race, the first after the tiffin interval, and the indications were that the rest of the meeting would be marred by rain showers.

Denies He Won
Third Prize In Big Sweep

A report was widely circulated in the city this morning that the winner of the third prize of $101,737 in yesterday's Pearce Memorial Cup sweepstake was Mr. E. B. Oliver of the Bank Line (China) Ltd.

However, when interviewed by a Telegraph reporter this morning, Mr. Oliver denied that he held the winning ticket.

It is reliably understood, however, that one or more members of the staff of the Bank Line won the one lakh prize.

An interesting coincidence which finished third in the race, Heliopopolis, is part-owned by Mr. A. H. Penn, Manager of the Bank Line.

Not Quite Clever Enough

Birmingham, Jan. 17.—A 26-year-old daughter and her mother spent three hours, among sales crowds in a store switching price tickets on dresses and coats. But the supervisors at the store were watching them.

One of the supervisors told Birmingham magistrates: "I saw the girl put the ticket from a 39 shillings and 11 pence coat on a £23 and three shillings coat. Then she took the coat to an assistant and bought it for 39 shillings and 11 pence."

The supervisor said that the girl later paid 19 shillings and 11 pence for a 29 shillings and 11 pence dress by the same means.

The two women were each fined £10.

"You carefully thought it out before leaving home. You thought you were clever, but you were not clever enough," the Chairman of the Bench told the mother and daughter.—Reuter.

The race is being organised with the backing of the New Zealand Government to coincide with an international exhibition at Christchurch, New Zealand, between October, 1953, and April, 1954.

Speed and handicap sections are being provided to suit most types of aircraft and entries have already been promised by British firms and airlines.

Other countries have shown immediate interest in the idea and Royal Dutch Airlines, which took a prominent part in the Britain-Australia air race of 1943 marking the centenary of Melbourne, are expected to compete again in 1953.

Prize money of £30,000 sterling is being offered to the world's largest flying concerns and best pilots to join in the race.

In each section of the race—both the open and handicap events—£10,000 sterling will be the first prize. There will be second prizes of £3,000 sterling, third prizes of £1,000 and fourth prizes of £500.

Cups and trophies worth another £1,000 sterling will also be given to the winners.

The route from Britain will be the same for all aircraft in both sections—by way of Basra, Calcutta, and Singapore to a point, to be decided, on the East coast of Australia.

The New Zealand Government has announced that it will develop the Christchurch airport of Harewood, seven miles from the South Island city, to meet international standards. Funds have already been allocated for initial work in this connection.

The race is being promoted by an incorporated body in New Zealand, the Canterbury International Air Race Council with the Royal Aero Club in London normally official recorder of all such affairs—as assistant organisers and agent.—Reuter.

Beautiful Evening Gown

By ALICE AIDEN

Dreamboat stuff, that's what they are, these beautiful ball gowns, created for gala occasions. The designer uses silver flecked blue lame and blue net over tulle. Lame is used for the shoestring shoulder straps, the tiny buttons and the softly draped back bustle.

By ELEANOR ROSS

MUCH of the lovely, luscious corduroy in yardage is washable. If the tag reads "vat dyed" and pre-shrunk, then it is all right to go ahead. Colours are fast, whether they be the deep, glowing dark shades or the paler, blonde tones. Especially nice for children is a wardrobe of washable corduroy. Vat dyed corduroys go into hot water, in fact, water as hot as you use with regular cotton fabrics. If machine washed, use your usual laundry soap or cleanser. Try a 5-minute wash period, it is generally sufficient. Loosen wringer rolls to avoid the crushing or wringing that is death to napped fabrics. If a spinner dryer is used, don't let it run longer than you need to get the water out.

Vigorous Shaking

After the garments have been washed and rinsed and are ready to hang up, go to it and give them a really vigorous shaking, just as you do to bath mats. It will be a treat to see how the fabric perks up, becomes fluffy, and how the wrinkles "shake" themselves away. Shape the garment carefully by smoothing and straightening before hanging to dry. Place tailored suits and jackets on shaped hangers to dry.

If you did a bang-up shaking job, there need be little ironing. There should be no need to iron children's play clothes or every day, casual clothes at all. If something has to be pressed, use light pressure on the iron and a professional pressing method, which means the iron up and down rather than gliding it.

Too Extreme

Designs, too, are much too extreme, in Marusia's opinion. "French women don't mind having yards of material billowing around them because they aren't figure-conscious like American women. Of course, fashions aren't created for young girls with nice figures. The matrons are the style leaders."

Sometimes Marusia shows all her dresses herself.

"I can model about 80 dresses in 45 minutes," the vivacious blonde claimed, "because all are the step-in type, with long zippers."

You don't need a pin-up figure to look well dressed, says Dorothy O'Hara. The former film designer thinks any woman, fat or lean, can look smart if she takes advantage of a few tricks used in film studios.

"A common mistake is the use of the round waistline or belt," she says. "The round line cuts the figure in half, making the short woman look even shorter and plumper."

"V-shaped waistlines, in addition to making a woman look taller, are adaptable to both short-waisted and long-waisted types. The V-neckline likewise adds to the illusion of a long unbroken line."

Flattering To Most

"The slim skirt," says Dorothy, "is the most flattering to most women. A peplum over the hips gives the thin girl curves, hides the plump girl's poundage. An inverted pleat in the skirt allows a girl to walk normally without detracting from the slim waistline effect."

Actresses, she points out, must have costumes; they can get into quickly without spoiling make-up and hairdos. They use full-length zippers so that they can step into their dresses. Associated Press.

The Modern Version Of Grandma's Horsehair Fabric

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY

New York. GRANDMOTHER never would recognise the horsehair fabric or the pulley light in the sleek modern versions just displayed by Edith Hernandez, furniture designer.

The old overhead gas light that used to pull down on a chain so it could be lighted has been turned into a modern brass and glass electric fixture by designer Harry Gitter. It slides up and down by means of a brass counter-weight.

Horsehair, made according to Edith Hernandez' version, is a sheer fabric in varied tones of brown. The stiff fibres have been woven into an interesting sheer material that Mrs. Hernandez uses for glass curtains or laminates onto white fibreglass or parchment to make novel-textured lampshades.

Sheer Horsehair

The sheer horsehair is available by the yard in New York markets and it has been turned into curtains simply by sewing strips of it together so the seams give a horizontal striped effect.

Mrs. Hernandez and her husband, William, formerly designed both furniture and fabrics that won citations of merit in the design competition sponsored by the American Institute of Decorators. In their new shop, they sell both their own designs and the work of other modern designers.

Expansible

"If an apartment dweller buys it to use as a small square table," Mrs. Hernandez explained, "then moves into a house with more space, the same frame can be expanded and it suits the large living room."

Plastic upholstery in a surprisingly realistic range of colours and patterns has just been put on the market. With a dulled finish and a full range of colours, the manufacturers have managed to reproduce regular fabric effects.

One of the new patterns is a satin-stripe effect in tones of blue, gray and maroon. Another combination displayed on a modern sofa is a floral pattern with an aqua blue background and shades of brown in the print. Sophisticated designs are used in the plastic upholstery as well as gay chintz copies.

Manufacturers will use it on ready-made furniture.

NEWSWORTHY PLEAT TYPES

PLEATS have every reason to stay popular this spring. Autumn has proved that women were in the mood for pleats. And the new collections prove that pleats are pace setters again, notably in permanent-pleated nylon and in new finer pleatings. Some of the important newsworthy pleat types are as follows:

1. Knee-pleats in a cotton playsuit with chemise-neckline top, middie-collar waist-length jacket. For active or spectator sports are seen.
2. Classic pleated white skirt, this in rayon tropical suiting with a striped interlock cotton "T-Blosure" with dolman sleeves.
3. Fine "mushroom" pleating. Ruth Payne designed this with a novel convertible neck, dolman sleeves.
4. Fine pleated chambray, with pleats bound in by self, ruffles—a Mildred Orick idea in a strapless dress to double as a short dance dress. News, too, the waist-fastened blousey jacket.
5. Permanent pleated nylon tunic blouse with drawstring shoulders and waist.
6. Permanent pleated nylon tunic, swim suit, with bra tucked to simulate pleating, too.

DAYTIME ELEGANCE

By VERA WINSTON

BEAUTIFUL, bright vibrant colours and soft pastels, that's the ticket now in wool jersey, rather than the neutral grays. A rich, glowing amethyst hue marks this (picture at left) handsome go-anywhere-dress of wool jersey, a good choice for the stay-at-home or the traveller. Three jewelled buttons secure the collarless V neckline. The bodice is seamed through the midriff and released for fullness over the bust. Inside tucks below the waist are released into gentle folds at the centre front of the skirt. In back the skirt is gored.

Inky black woollen and soft black velvet combine to make this a dress of understated elegance and charm (centre picture). It relies entirely on the clever placement of the fabric which is handled in an adaptation of a harlequin effect. The smart severity is relieved by silver rimmed buttons and the straight slim silhouette is broken by the suggestion of a peg-top achieved by gathers at the waist.

Warmth and good looks are what a gal wants from her woollen frocks. And that's what she gets in this dress at right. Of taupe sheer woollen, it has a neat little black velvet collar below which three little cut-outs lend an unexpected and festive air. The otherwise simple bodice has easy five-eighths length sleeves. The bias skirt has two self-folds banding the hem. The belt is of crushed black velvet.

A hot bath is the perfect way to relax. For added luxury, use a fragrant water-softener, and afterwards, dust on powder liberally.

By HELEN FOLLETT

TEN minutes of bubbling every morning is of cosmetic value. The smart woman knows that this is a health measure and a pleasure. So luxurious, so lazy, so indolent one feels! The perfect form of relaxation. Let the telephone clang. You can't answer. You are apart and away from your own little world, and that's grand. Lie in the warm water, relax, let your soul be at peace.

Before starting in on steaming and resting, lather your face, dry thoroughly, and apply a light cream. The warm air, combined with the fragrant lubricant, will dig out any bits of atmospheric dust that may have lodged in the pores of your skin. Soften the bath water. You will find various preparations compounded for this purpose—tablets, bath salts, lotions. Provide yourself with a first class bath brush. Don't economise on this item. Poor brushes aren't worth carrying home.

There are endless additions to the bath routine that are fun.

Oils for the entire body, which, frictioned and massaged into the skin, furnish recompense for the natural oils that have disappeared. The woman who suffers from an itching skin surface after the bath should not fail to use one of these delightful toiletries.

If the skin is not dry, one can use a tonic lotion, a sort of relative to eau de cologne, that whisks away goose flesh, if it happens to be present, and leaves a refreshing aroma.

The girl who goes without stockings will need to rub a cream into her legs, if the skin is to carry a clear, healthy look. In cold weather, when one wears the shortest hose, legs may need a little cosmetic attention.

And don't forget foot powder, especially if you have the kind of trotters that seem to run a temperature after you have been hoofing it for some time. Rub it between your toes, press it on the soles of your feet, sprinkle it on your shoes.

IDA BAILEY ALLEN
Dinner of Chinese Dishes

HERE is a menu from a Chinese eating place in Canton which is typical of South China cookery. It presents an interesting contrast to the European menu from Hong Kong we discussed yesterday. Our friend, Mr. L. G. Shreve, translated it for me. "When you sit down, a dish of dried watermelon seeds is brought for you to nibble. The first course is a choice of either bird's nest soup or shark's fin, both great delicacies. "Then comes an extensive array of substantial meat, poultry, fish, egg and vegetable dishes, all served at the same time. You can have them all or as many as you like. These will include sweet and sour pork, chicken with almonds, egg roll, eggs foo-yung, fried rice with pork, or shrimp or ham, fried soft noodles, rice, roast duck, baked fish with a delicious sauce, mustard greens, bitset, which is a kind of Chinese cabbage, and peas with edible pods.

"Many condiments are passed, among them, coarse powdered ginger used for hot seasoning, sharp table mustard, and soy-sauce, which is called 'salet'. All foods are cut in small bite-sized pieces, and eaten with chopsticks. Each food comes to the table boiling hot in a large dish, and the guests help themselves to whatever they like, using a bowl of rice as the accompaniment, as we might use bread.

Special Order

"Is there any special order in which these foods are served, Madame?"

"No, except the fish, which is served during the latter part of the meal."

"How about the soups, Madame?"

"They are always served last, bird's nest soup is the only exception."

"When do they eat dessert?"

"Dessert is not served. Fruit or sweets are eaten between times."

"And tea is throughout the meal?"

"Sometimes, but more often at the end. Rice wine is often served with the meal."

"Are there no cold foods, Madame?"

"No, foods in China are served hot. And salads are not used. However, they compensate for this by cooking their vegetables only a short time and using all the cooking liquid. They use quantities of soy beans in many ways, and soy beans are the only vegetable food that is comparable to milk in nutritive value. They even make a 'milk' from soy beans which is used to feed babies who cannot be breast fed.

Agricultural Improvement

"There is a desperate need in China today for education in agricultural improvement, sanitation, better health and child care. If was to put in effect an audio-visual education plan to teach these subjects that Mr. Shreve went to China. This is a project under the auspices of the Joint Commission on Rural Reconstruction. "Radio was used as far as possible. But the simplest way to reach the vast population was by means of posters, which were distributed in market places, on village walls and in schools. There were lots of comics used—the Chinese children respond to them, just as our children do in this country, and they hope to reach the parents through the child."

"By the way, Madame, what was the favourite dish of our friend?"

"The sweet and sour pork I've put in today's menu."

Dinner of Chinese Dishes

Chicken Mushroom Soup
Sweet and Sour Pork
Fried Soft Noodles Spinach Preserves Kumquats

Include enriched bread or rolls with butter or margarine.
All Measurements Are Level
Recipes Serve Four

Chicken Mushroom Soup
To 3 c. chicken broth (or use 1 tin concentrated chicken broth), 1 tin water and 1 chicken bouillon cube), add 2 tbsp. diced cooked chicken, ¼ c. sliced minced mushrooms, salt and pepper to taste, and ¼ tsp. gourmet powder (or use monosodium glutamate). Heat to boiling point and serve.

Sweet and Sour Pork
Cut 1 lb. lean pork into 1 in. cubes. Pound the pieces lightly to flatten them. Next beat 1 egg with 2½ tsp. cornstarch. Dip the pork in this, and fry in deep hot fat, 375 F., until lightly browned. Meanwhile make the sweet-sour sauce. Add to the pork after it is fried; let stand 2 or 3 min. to season and serve with fried soft noodles or rice.

Sweet-Sour Sauce for Pork: Combine ¾ c. sugar and ¼ c. cider vinegar in a saucepan. Add ½ c. water, ¼ tsp. salt and 1 large cored seeded green pepper cut into ½ in. squares. Stir until boiling; boil 1 min. To thicken, blend 2 tsp. cornstarch with ½ tsp. cold water; add to the sauce and stir constantly 2 min. Then add 2 slices minced pineapple cut into 8 sections each. Season with ¼ tsp. soy sauce if convenient.

Fried Soft Noodles
Boil ½ lb. fine egg noodles. Drain thoroughly and chill. In a preheated large heavy frying pan, put 3 tbsp. cooking oil. Add the noodles and slow-fry over a moderate heat until lightly browned. Then turn with a pancake turner to brown the other side.

Suggestion of the Chef
Instead of preserved Kumquats for Chinese dinner you could substitute banana-orange bowl. In this case, pare a good-sized oranges and slice crosswise. Arrange in a glass bowl in layer with thin-slices of banana (2 will be enough) and better health and child care. If the top pour 1 tbsp. lemon juice combined with 1 tsp. honey. Garnish with raisins. Cover and chill at least 1 hr.

Sitting on the Fence.... by

NATHANIEL GUBBINS

ARGUMENT about whether we are now in the 49th or 50th year of the 20th century doesn't matter to me. All I know is that I have lived through it all and didn't like any of it.

Here are the low spots of my life starting at the beginning of the century.

About 1900. Aged about six. Heard roar of cheering in streets of London. It was relief of Mafeking. Didn't like the noise. Cried and was taken home.

1901. Went to school. Found best and kindest boy, bigger boys. Didn't like it. Cried and was taken home.

1911. Got a job. Didn't like it. Nearly cried. Went home.

1914. Enlisted in Army. Didn't like it. Too old to cry. Couldn't go home.

1915. Went to France. Didn't like it. Sick. Invalued home.

1919. Released from Army. Got a job. Didn't like it. No use crying. Money to take home.

1921. Fired. Didn't cry, but went home.

1922. Got another job. Didn't like it. Got married. First quarrel. Didn't like it. Nearly cried. Nearly went home.

1923-29. Working as reporter. Didn't like it. Reporters too tough to cry. Went home when I could.

1930. Started funny column. Nobody laughed. Nearly cried. Went home.

1939. War. Didn't like it. Much enough to make anybody cry. Went home.

1940. Bombs didn't like them. Home. Guard. Didn't like it. But nothing to cry about. Could always go home.

1945. Peace. Didn't like it. Rationing continued. Didn't like it. Income tax. Didn't like it. Felt like crying. Went home.

1946. Left Surrey. Went for Sea. Didn't like sea. Didn't like sea now. Shall never like sea. No use crying. Sea is home.

1949. Invited to join Special Constabulary "in case". What? Another war? Another uniform? Didn't like it. Felt like crying. Went home.

One good deed

In Port Elizabeth, South Africa, one good deed a day is performed by local scoutmasters who sit in with lonely wives while their husbands are out with the boys. There is no charge.

From the news.

EVEN if you are a scoutmaster you don't have to sit right at the end of the divan. I'm quite comfortable here, thank you.

Then I shall sit your end. Isn't that nicer?

Well, yes. In a way. You don't sound very enthusiastic.

Oh, yes, I am. But one has to remember one's a scoutmaster. But scoutmasters do the most terrible things. I've read about them.

There are black sheep in every fold.

I simply adore black sheep. What's that badge for? Making five out of little bits of fluff?

Yes.

And that one?

Good conduct.

Don't move back any further. You'll fall over the edge. Shall I tell your fortune?

Why yes. Of course.

Tonight you're going to lose one badge and win another.

Am I?

You're going to lose your good conduct badge. How do you like that?

Well.

And win a badge for starting another little fire. Do you know where?

Really, Mrs. Bracegirdle. A little fire in my heart. Shall I tell you something else?

You'd better not. I thought I heard a key in the front door. Go's got black sheep's eyes, so has Oh, hello, Bracegirdle. Had a good time?

Yes. Have you?

In the club

"Well, what's going to happen now?"

"About what?"

"The Government. I suppose you think the Conservatives are going to win the election?"

'TOY TRAIN' IS WORTH £4000

Sir Eric, 52 now, began it in 1912

IN the stable of a large country house in Kinross, a 52-year-old baronet, Sir Eric Hutchison, wartime brigadier of the Western Desert, is working on a miniature railway system, one of the finest model railways of its type.

It is insured for £3,000, but Sir Eric believes that its market value would be more than £4,000.

He began buying the tracks and building scenery four years ago. But it was in 1912 that he made the first locomotives and carriages.

He has 35 locomotives and more than 140 carriages, all made by himself. 20,000 wooden sleepers and 40,000 railway "chairs" into which the lines are set ballasted by little limestone chips.

Even Cottages

The scenery which he has made with the help of Lady

Hutchison, reproduces the details of the main line between Blair Atholl and Dalnaspical on the scale of quarter of an inch to the foot.

It is complete with gatekeepers' cottages, fashioned by hand, bridges, signals, hills and mountain fastnesses, fences.

The trees are made from wire wool painted green.

Sir Eric intends to represent even the burns.

Replica Of Bridge

One of his finest models is a replica of the wooden-trestle bridge near Inverness shown in a wintry setting.

Sir Eric spent two days photographing and measuring the actual bridge before he set to work on putting together the model with hundreds of pieces of wood.

A mail coach has its parcel net, for lifting the mail at wayside stations, made from a woman's hair-net.

From a main switchboard Sir Eric can control each movement of his trains. Points can be opened and closed. Switches can send a train into a siding.

Sir Eric's favourite engine is the model of a Drummond "banking" tank locomotive used for helping trains up the gradient between Blair Atholl and Dalnaspical.

He made it when serving near "Hellfire" Pass in the Libyan Desert.

"It was a bit awkward at times," said Sir Eric from his home, Hardistan.

"I used to get up early in the

"Is there?"

"Strikes, riots, civil war. And what then?"

"No idea."

"Communism. Stalin knows how to deal with workers who cause trouble."

"Does he?"

"I warn you 1950's going to be worse than the last five years put together. For the workers into the factory. For the farmers. Think as they think, or else. For the country, poverty, ruin, slavery, chaos. End. Good luck to you."

"Same to you."

Old saws right

Dr. Valden Miles, D.C., professor of physics, has reached the conclusion that many old proverbs predict the weather are meteorologically sound.

Among reliable ones are:

Evening red, morning grey will help the traveller on his way.

Rain before seven, fine before eleven.

SOME old weather saws in this part of the world are equally reliable about health.

1. January wind is frore.

1. February blow your nose if March be mild with showers of rain.

In April blow your nose again. May blossom heavy hung with snow.

Go to bed, and blow, blow. If in June east winds do freeze. All July you'll have snow and cold. So in August and September.

Cough, cough, cough all through November. December snow, December cheer. Doctor calls throughout New Year.

They work longer for less money

Ultimately everything comes back to the millions of German workers in factories and offices and on the farms. They work harder and longer and for less money than the British.

No five-day week for them, no long week-ends, no strikes or stoppages, but heavy slogging with overtime when possible—to get more money with which they really can buy something they need.

It is the same with the managerial staff. The Herr Direktor is usually at his desk by eight in the morning and leaves long after dark.

Shops open at 8 a.m. and close at 7 p.m.

The country hums with industry

So it goes on right down the line. The country hums with industry.

There is nothing you can do about that. You cannot order people not to work hard when they want to. That is the problem Britain is now facing.

A British official who helped to build Western Berlin's power station said to me: "I have never seen anything like the way these Germans work."

A STORY THAT SHOULD MAKE YOU THINK

WARNING IN THE SMOKE RISING OVER BERLIN

by SELKIRK PANTON

A CROSS the sky over Berlin today, three giant chimneys are belching smoke. They are as much a warning of danger to Britain and her economy as the Red Indian smoke signal was to the early American settlers.

They are the symbol of the rebirth of Germany's vast industrial strength which, if we do not take care, may torpedo Britain's dollar drive.

The chimneys belong to the new-born Western Berlin power station. This station is claimed to be the most modern power station in Europe and is already producing 40,000 kilowatts a day.

tions in Britain, ask: "How can Britain compete with this?"

The fear aroused makes them ask another question: "Can we stop the Germans getting out of hand once they are strong again?"

It is this fear that overshadows every international discussion on Germany.

It lies always at the back of British minds even when they are pushing ahead with their job of building up Germany again.

There is nothing they or anybody else can do about it, of course. And that is all the worse for them because they know the reasons why it is happening.

Those reasons are:—

Built a giant in six months

The electricity it produces is not the danger.

The danger is that this giant station was built by the Germans in six months.

British electricity experts in Berlin say that it would take four to five years to build such a station in Britain.

It is this speed, typical of the recovery of industry and living standards all through Western Germany, that is frightening British and other Western experts whose job it has been to help rebuild Germany from chaos.

Production nearly back to 1936

Today the 50,000,000 Germans in Western Germany are very heavily back where they were before the war, except for housing.

Industrial production has reached 93 percent of the 1936 figure, a boom year. Not allowed during the war, the Germans now have more butter. Food rationing has become an unnecessary farce, only kept on as window dressing for the conquerors.

The Black Market is all but dead. It has become superfluous.

Fears of a new competition

"SHOCK" RESULTS LIKELY IN LEAGUE PROGRAMME

London, Jan. 17.—Many of the teams battling for points in Saturday's English League programme face important Cup matches the following week. Players with the Cup "on their minds" are usually careful about risking injury, and teams often lapse unaccountably immediately before a vital Cup tie.

This unpredictable factor may help in the production of "shock" results on Saturday.

One of the games in which it could influence the trend of the play is Burnley's home match against West Bromwich Albion. Burnley, well up in the First Division table, seem very likely to win on form, but they are still in the Cup, while West Bromwich Albion are out of it.

Burnley's sound defence gives little away and they should win unless the imminence of a Cup tie affects their play.

LONDON RIVALS MEET

The meeting of the local London rivals, Chelsea and Fulham, may provide one of the closest struggles of the day in the premier Division. Home advantage does not count for much in these matches, where the visiting team has the support of a big band of its followers, but Chelsea should win. Before losing away last Saturday they had been undefeated since November 26.

Sunderland, who have not lost a League match at home this season, entertain a team with a good away record in Derby County. Derby have been climbing rapidly in the League table, but Sunderland should maintain their home record in what looks like being a tight match. Both teams are still in the Cup.

Manchester City, second from the bottom in the table, have experienced widely in trying to find a winning team, but have not achieved success. Newcastle's away record shows only two wins from 14 matches, but even with a Cup match imminent they may take two points from the City.

FOURTH GAME

Aston Villa meet Middlesbrough for the fourth time in 15 days, the other three matches being a Cup tie and replays. Middlesbrough, badly set back through the fourth round of the Cup with a good win, but Villa, on their own ground on Saturday may force the third draw in the four matches.

The match between the two Sheffield clubs, United and Wednesday, promises to be one of the best. Second Division games are strong candidates for promotion behind the Division leaders, Tottenham Hotspur, while the United have maintained a steady measure of success after a poor start and are now fourth in the table.

Wednesday's all-round strength may force a division of the points against their formidable and still improving rivals.

Pancho May Have Beaten The Gun

New York, Jan. 17.—Pancho Gonzales, who presently is occupied in making a lot of money as a tennis professional, will have to wait until January 21 to learn if he is America's No. 1 ranking amateur for 1949.

This is when the Lawn Tennis Association is scheduled to hold its annual meeting here and either to approve or disapprove the national men's list for last year submitted by the Ranking Committee. A delicate point of tennis law is at issue.

A stern rule of the association says that no player who turns professional before October 15 may aspire to a national ranking. It so happens that Gonzales, in a hurry to cash in on the National Championship he had just won at Forest Hills, was sworn in as a money player on Sept. 20.

CAUGHT BY A SWITCH

A resolution will be submitted at the annual meeting to throw out the Oct. 15 stipulation, and it is thought that it will be passed. But in the meantime, both Pancho and the Ranking Committee are caught by a switch.

On the last announced recently Gonzales appears at least temporarily in the No. 1 spot, followed in order by Ted Schroeder, whom he defeated in a dramatic five-set final for the national crown; Billy Talbert of New York City and Frankie Parker of Los Angeles. If they fail to rescind the rule, Schroeder automatically will ascend to No. 1, Talbert to

No. 2, Parker to No. 3, etc. Frankie is in the clear. Though he is playing in the same pro-tour with Gonzales, he carefully waited until after the deadline to join the union.

THE OTHERS

Completing the first 10 as matters stand are No. 5, Gordon Mulloy; No. 6, Arthur Larsen; No. 7, Earl Cochell; No. 8, Sam Mich; No. 9, Edward Moyland; and No. 10, Herbert Flam.

Mrs. Margaret Osborne Dupont of Wilmington, heads the women's list submitted by the Ranking Committee.

Mrs. Dupont won the 1949 National Championship by defeating Doris Hart in the final at Forest Hills. She announced she would not defend the title in 1950.

Louise Brough was ranked No. 2 and Miss Hart No. 3, this despite the fact that the Florida girl beat Miss Brough in the semi-finals of the national tournament. — Associated Press.

Romero Beats Ron Draper In 6 Rounds

London, Jan. 17.—Luis Romero, the Spanish and European Bantamweight Champion, tonight beat Ron Draper, of Southampton, who retired at the end of the sixth round of their 10-rounds International contest here.

Romero, making his first appearance in an English ring, outboxed and out-punched Draper, who though taking heavy punishment put up a gallant display.

COUNT OF NINE

The thickest, good-looking Spaniard had Draper down for a count of nine in the third round. Draper also went down for a count of nine in the sixth round when the Spaniard dropped him with a vicious punch to the ribs.

Draper had difficulty with his opponent's southpaw stance and although in the fourth and fifth rounds he boxed at pluckily and took the Champion once or twice with good right hooks it was he who had to give ground every time.

Romero gave a workmanlike display of boxing, punching left and right, and left and right, and was better in all departments.

Afterwards, Mr. George Douglas, manager of the Manchester boxer, Ray Fenton, who fought Romero to a close decision in Barcelona last year, challenged the Champion to a return non-title bout. Reuter.

Aussies Think It's Sporting To Win Tests

Melbourne, Jan. 17. The British radio commentator, John Arlott, has caused a storm in Australian cricket circles with his new book, "Concerning Cricket," in which he was quoted here as saying that Australian cricketers have "a single-minded determination to win the game—to win within the laws, but if necessary to the last limit within them."

W. H. Ponsford, former Test batsman, said that the Australians had never asked any quarter in Test matches nor did they give any. "Nothing will convince me that every player representing England in a Test is any less determined to win than the Australians," he said.

REPUTATION

"Apart from each player's desire to do his best they all realise their country's reputation is at stake," Jack Byler, former Test captain, said that all Tests were hard-fought, otherwise there would not much interest in them.

Doug Ring, a member of Sir Donald Bradman's 1948 Test team, said that at no time in a Test had Australians been more ruthless than their opponents.

"Collectively we might have looked more businesslike and possibly a little grimmer, but that probably was due to the fact that every player, whether batting, bowling or fielding, was determined to do his utmost," he said.—Reuter.

Famous Amateur Soccer Club To Be Revived Next Season

BY ARCHIE QUICK

Good news for amateur Soccer is that the famous London Caledonians Football Club is to be revived next season. A ground has been obtained in suburban London and application is to be made for re-entry to the Isthmian League.

The "Calides" who have produced such great players of the past as Andy Sloan, John Noble and the brothers Eric and Basil Gates, closed down during the War, but re-started afterwards, sharing a ground with Tufnell Park.

They found it impossible to carry on, however, after only one season, and their cessation was a great loss to top-class Metropolitan amateur football.

WOMEN AT SNOOKER

Professional billiards and snooker player, Miss Joyce Gardner, has just made a first round break of 208 at billiards and is now endeavouring to surpass her snooker best of 92 and get the coveted century.

There are only five top class women professionals in the country and one of them, Miss Ruth Harrison, of Newcastle, rarely competes now. She lives in a small Northumbrian village and gets little chance of practice.

Miss Gardner complained to me at the attitude of the Women's Association in asking for 95 percent of the gate when the players compete for the National Snooker and Billiards Professional Championships.

We certainly compete for their trophies. Miss Gardner told me that I thought it was a typical error and wrote and told them so. But it was true to my astonishment.

AFTER ORTIZ

Boxing has been to life in the capital by the fight waged by rival promoters Jack Solomon and Jack Capell for the services of Manuel Ortiz. Solomon says he has booked an air passage from London to fight the world Bantamweight Champion.

Capell says Ortiz has phoned him on his own initiative and asked to fight the European Champion, Spanish Romero in Barcelona for a purse that is out of Solomon's reach.

The battle has not ended yet.

CYCLING CLASSIC

Next season's Brighton to Glasgow race, organised by the British League of Racing Cyclists, will be extended from six to seven days, with a modified route and the introduction of a time-trial stage from Wolverhampton to Nottingham, via Colley, Watling Street, and Buckley, a distance of 10 miles.

A sporting journal is sponsoring the event and is providing £1,000, half of which will be spent on prizes and the remainder on administrative expenses, including those of foreign competitors from France, Poland and Italy.

The race will start from Brighton on Sunday, August 6, and the course will be: Brighton-London, London-Weston-super-Mare, Weston-Wolverhampton, and Wolverhampton-Nottingham.

From Nottingham a devious route has been chosen across the Pennines to Bradford to comprise the "mountain stage." As in 1948, the lengthened course from Bradford to Newcastle will be used and the final

Klinghardt Leads Chess Tournament

H. Klinghardt won his fourth consecutive game last night in the tournament for the Championship of the Kowloon Chess Club at the Peninsula Hotel to lead the field by a point. Three other players, however, have yet to lose or draw.

Klinghardt beat P. K. Prokopov in a Queen's Gambit with the black pieces. Prokopov held a pawn less at one stage, though having a slight positional disadvantage.

The end came when Prokopov fell into a bad error in the late middle game.

NO UPSETS

The other games went very much on current form. A. Birlukoff won his third consecutive game, also with the black pieces, against A. D. Tuska, relying on an orthodox QGD. The game, even most of the way, went to 45 moves.

The match between the old rivals—Ray Danenberg and Eugene Tausz—went to over 80 moves, finishing in an end game of a rook and three pawns aside.

Tausz proved the leader end-game player while Danenberg threw all caution to the winds and lost. Earlier on he refused to claim a win when Tausz was offering his rook free on what was obviously an error.

In the only other game played, E. M. Marchetti beat V. V. Kolatchoff, making it a clean sweep for black. This game, an irregular Flanchetto Defence to the King's Opening saw both players tied up in positions where attacking chances had to be held in check by the necessary defence. Kolatchoff lost a piece and the game on a bad oversight on the 27th move.

CHINESE XI

A Combined Chinese XI will play the RAF at Craggengower next Sunday. The match starts at 11 a.m., and members of the Chinese XI are:

Davis Leads Brown 15-9

London, Jan. 17.—Fred Davis, the holder, gained an interval lead of 10 frames to eight over Alec Brown in their quarter-final match in the World Snooker Championships at Accrington, Lancashire, today.

The interval scores (with Davis first) were 49 to 50, 63 to 37, 94 to 14, 50 to 57, 82 to 34.

In London, Sidney Smith led Walter Donaldson by 11 frames to seven at the interval in their heat of the News of the World tournament. The interval scores (with Smith first) were 49 to 61, 92 to 44, 26 to 88, 76 to 60, 113 to 18, 95 to 50.

In the fifth frame of the day Smith made a break of 63. Davis won five of the six evening session frames to increase his lead over Brown at the close of the day's play to 15 frames to nine. The scores (with Davis first) were 99 to 38, 75 to 77 to 47, 84 to 32, 90 to 27, 95 to 45.

Smith won all six of the evening frames in his match against Donaldson and at the close led by 17 frames to seven. Reuter.

AMERICAN COLLEGES KEEP ROPING IN FOREIGN ATHLETES

By CORNELIUS RYAN

New York.—There's an old saying in American politics: "if you can't beat 'em, join 'em", and that seems to be the feeling among some foreign athletes.

They are not exactly joining the Americans, but they are coming to America in increasing numbers to get the kind of coaching and competition which will make them stars.

Kurt Nielsen, of Denmark, perhaps Europe's most promising tennis player, is attending the University of California at Los Angeles, where he is getting the coaching, the competition and the favourable weather which made Jack Kramer, Pancho Gonzales, Ted Schroeder, Pauline Betz, Margaret Osborne DuPont and many other Californians great tennis stars.

ANNOYING THE IRISH

John Joseph Barry, James Rordan and Connan Clancy of Ireland are at Villanova College in Philadelphia, and will try to win places on the college track team. Some Irishmen resented this mass exodus of their Olympic stars, but the boys explained that the sports programme is better in America and the academic advantages just as good as in an Irish university.

Morris Curotta, of Australia, one of the best sprinters and 440-yard runners in the world, entered Seton Hall College in New Jersey because he prefers American training and competition.

AUSTRALIAN SWIMMERS

Australia also sent two great swimmers to America—John Marshall of Melbourne is at Yale University and John Davies is at Michigan. Marshall was second to the USA's Jim

JOHN PELL OF CUE FAME IS ALL OF 95

Hail at the turn of the mid-century a man celebrating his 95th birthday who was in his games-playing prime long before the century began. None other than William John Peall, of Hove—not to be confused, please, with a certain other John Peall.

Not know Peall, you youngsters? In his day he was a celebrity—the great billiards champion whose fine touch was so unfailing that the laws of billiards had to be altered to prevent him from scoring too many.

He developed the "spot stroke"—the potting of the red at the top of the table, which he carried on like a recurring decimal. Back in 1880 he made his biggest break, 3,304, largely by using this stroke—he put the red down 400 consecutive times. His stature? Five feet.

SON AGED 73

I invited one of my younger colleagues, Dennis Lee, who, not unreasonably, had never heard of Peall, to make his acquaintance over the telephone to Hove. He had to do so at second hand, for the call was answered by Peall's son Ernest, a mere lad of 73.

He mentioned that the birthday party would include two sons and a daughter, two grand-children and two great-grand-children. A granddaughter and her husband came from Switzerland for the occasion. The cake had 95 candles—one for every 10 years.

Mr. Peall is still in good health, does the daily shopping and until recently was a keen motorist—he has held a licence since 1888. He abandoned motoring on public roads only a year ago because he felt that he had an accident his age would be blamed.

BILLIARDS SOMETIMES

As for billiards, he finds his sight lets him down, he plays only rarely with the cue he has treasured for 77 years.

Peall still talks of the "good old days" when he rode a penny-farthing cycle in 1871 and of a cup in his home presented to him in 1872 by a man named Wainwright. Soon afterwards Wainwright was hanged for murder.

Let us hope that Peall completes his 100 break—in 1934.

THREE ZEALOTS

Working their passages abroad the Trojan Star—London bound from New Zealand—were John, Freddy and John Stewart and Neville Brightwell. All are 23 years old.

Their object—to be the first team to represent New Zealand in the Table Tennis World Championships at Budapest in late January.

HORNE AND FAULKNER

Ryder Cup player Reg Horne, who is going to the Argentine in February with Max Faulkner, will play in two tournaments. One is at the Mar del Plata club, which is celebrating its 50th anniversary. It has a good course and a magnificent clubhouse.

The pair, who are new starters of the ball, will also play in exhibition matches and do some teaching.

DEADLOCK

Deadlock has been reached in the proposed deal in 6,000 Crystal Palace Football Club shares which was to have been completed by the end of December. Result: control of the club is unlikely to be changed after all.

You remember—the background. The trustees of the former supporters' club desiring control, opened negotiations last August for the shares.

BEGAN AT £1

The original value of the shares was £1 each. The trustees say their attention has been drawn to an FA decree that there are certain limitations on the amount of profit on the sale of the football club shares. The trustees would allow Mr. Harper a "sentimental margin" on his shares, but will not pay more than £1 10s. each for them.

As far as I am concerned I have made an offer, and they either accept it, or they don't. I didn't think they would, anyway. Perhaps the Palace FC will now be left alone to mind its own business. If anyone is willing to invest £5,000 or £10,000 in the club, we shall be pleased to put him on the board of directors.

If the deal is not completed on December 31, the Supporters' Club trustees forfeit a deposit of £30 paid to Mr. Harper.

MERCY ERRAND

Back from Dublin, Tom Whittaker, of the Arsenal, after a mission of typical kindness. This busy manager had spent three days in taking home 19-year-old Bill Duffy, reserve centre-forward of fine promise, who has fallen ill with chest trouble, and is expected to be out of the game at least till the end of the season.

When I suggested to Whittaker that someone else could have escorted Duffy, he replied: "No, I think it was my job to explain things to the lad's mother. I didn't want to depute the task to anyone else." "The doctors' reaction in Dublin, where he is going to hospital, is that if Arsenal could go to such lengths for Duffy it was up to them to go all out to win. I don't want to depute the task to anyone else." "The club provide the medical service."

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE

Army Colonel Uses His Head on Hand

BY WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY

I RECENTLY attended a meeting at the Army and Navy Club in Washington with Dr. Earl J. McGinnis, Commissioner of Education, and Dr. R. I. Grigby, his assistant. We were discussing the problem of the education of the American war orphan, a hobby of mine.

After the luncheon I dropped into the card room at the club, and found games of bridge, canasta and gin running all in progress. I picked up a problem or two for my canasta column, then pulled up a chair behind Col. E. B. Gray, who has been an ardent bridge fan for years. Poor health limits the colonel's tournament activities but he still enjoys rubber bridge at the club.

It is interesting to watch a military man play bridge, because he is almost invariably a careful strategist. Many of us would make a mistake on today's hand, but not Colonel

Gray. He won the opening lead of the five of diamonds in dummy with the king, then jumped up with the ace. Would you follow with the four-spade if you were declarer? I told you it is easy to make a mistake on this hand.

The colonel thought for a while. Why had East jumped up with the ace of hearts? He finally decided that it had been either a blank or the ace and jack, and when I saw the colonel play the ten of hearts from his hand instead of the four, I knew he was on his toes.

East returned another diamond, which had to be won in dummy with the ace. The colonel led a club back to his queen, cashed the king of hearts, and East's jack fell. Now the colonel had the four of hearts to play to dummy, finesse the eight-spade and cash the heart queen.

If he had played the four of hearts under the ace, he could have cashed the king and ten, but he would have had no entry to get into dummy to make the queen, the needed ninth trick.

YOUR BIRTHDAY... By STELLA

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 18

If you are born today, you are called an opportunist, for sometimes you change your position as conditions alter. Few may know that this change is really your personal opinion you've had all along. This habit must be watched or it can become a liability not an asset.

Naturally affectionate, you do not always show your attachment outwardly. You might have a romantic ideal for a long time without the object of your affection even guessing it. Be more frank with those you love or you may lose them.

To find what the stars have in store for tomorrow, select your birthday star and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

MIDWEEK BOOK PARADE

NEW MATERIAL IN THE OSCAR WILDE STORY

OSCAR WILDE AND THE BLACK DOUGLAS

By The Marquess Of Queensbury And Percy Colson.
(Hutchinson, 20s)

THE events leading to the tragedy of Oscar Wilde are discussed by the tenth Marquess of Queensbury, whose uncle, Lord Alfred Douglas, figured prominently in the Wilde trials.

The book begins with a short account of the Douglas Clan, then deals with Wilde's parents and youth before giving the well-discussed story from a new angle and introducing much new material. Discussing Wilde as a man, the authors write that "what Samuel Johnson was to the eighteenth century, Wilde was to the nineteenth."

Wilde bids fair to become a more prominent figure in the history of the age in which they lived and stamped themselves on it by sheer force of personality. Had the two men met they would have been mutually antipathetic. Johnson's manners would have shocked Wilde, while Wilde's cynical wit would have more than shocked Johnson. But each would have respected the other's intellect.

Of Oscar Wilde's ability to charm with brilliant conversation, Bernard Shaw said, "He was incomparably the greatest talker of his time—perhaps of all time." Douglas said that "when he came into a room, life took on a different aspect. Depression vanished, he would talk in his golden voice."

"Till mean things took on beauty like a dress. And all the world was an enchanted place."

As all writers on Wilde must do, the authors deal separately with the different sides of his character. Wilde, the victim of moral lapse, Wilde, the writer, Wilde, the man who wanted success, applause and the glitter of society, each will be understood a little better after the reading of this book. After his release from Reading Gaol, Wilde lived in Paris for the last three years of his life, without money or friends. His health failed him and he died in November 1900, an unhappy man.

To quote Bernard Shaw again: "If ever there was a writer whose prayer to posterity might well have been 'read my works and let my life alone,' it was Oscar." One side of his character showed him in trouble and while the writer and the dramatist was killed by the tragedy.

BY THE WAY

by Beachcomber

THE copies of the Oratorio on sale in Holborn this morning will be expurgated versions.

Mrs. Delfosse, through her solicitors, Messrs Pilledge, Jimsey, Jimsey, and Pilledge, and Jimsey—has refused permission for the whole or any part of the work to be sold before the first performance. I tried to reach her by telephone but could only get a veterinary surgeon in Norwich, who thought I was talking about a cat, and said: "Destroy her at once." Meanwhile, who on earth is this Mr. F. N. Leonard, who denies that he was asked by Mrs. Delfosse to conduct the Oratorio at Wivenhoe tomorrow? And who is Miss Helder?

THEY are saying in the clubs that a gallant sailor, the captain of an Atlantic liner, after a tender moment or two with Lady Castanight, attached a printed notice to her dress: "Twice Round This Waist is Half A Mile."

Dr. Strabismus at work. DR. STRABISMUS (Whom God Preserve) of Utrecht, ever since his failure to find and bring back to England the fossilised foot of the Aztecs, has been working on a formula for the pre-fossilisation of thirteenth-century food.

By removing all vestiges, as it were, of taste from food, the doctor hopes to keep it stale for at least ten years. Moreover the system of pre-fossilisation speeds up the fossilisation to such an extent that it is impossible to tell even fresh food from fossilised food. A freshly caught cod, frozen, thawed and fossilised within ten hours tastes no nicer than the same cod after a year.

Are stockpiles recoverable? A PAINTSTAKING glossary of economic jargon, published in a morning paper, is delightfully honest. "Hard Currency" is described as "a term without precise meaning," and "I am referred to 'Soft Currency,' which is a relative rather than an absolute term." Deflation, Inflation, Reflation, and Disinflation are discussed, but their little brothers Re-inflation, Re-disinflation, and Re-deflation are unaccountably omitted. Nor is there any mention of Non-altruism, which is the rejection of Bilateralism, Trilateralism, Semilateralism, Multilateralism, Ambilateralism, and more Lateralism.

DISPOSAL OF TOOLS HALTED

by Beachcomber

Duesseldorf, Jan. 17.—The Allied High Commission has agreed to a West German Government's proposal that 1,500 large dismantled machine tools formerly belonging to Krupp should not be removed for another six months.

This was announced today by General W. R. A. Bishop, British Land Commissioner for North Rhine Westphalia.

The machine tools were allotted for delivery to Britain, France, Belgium, Holland, Norway, Yugoslavia, Greece and Albania.

The West German Government asked for a postponement to have other machines constructed in the meantime as they were all required for peace-time industry.

The West German Government assured the High Commission that the tools would be handed over at the end of this period. Reuter.

Russian Bid For Monopoly On China's Tin

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT

London, Jan. 17.—Russia's biggest supply problem—that of obtaining tin—may soon be solved for them. Cut off from all world sources of tin since the wartime mutual aid programme ended, Russia can now look forward to getting most, if not all, of China's tin output.

Before the war, China exported between eleven and twelve thousand tons of tin annually and now, according to reports reaching London from the Far East, the tin mines in South China will shortly begin to operate again under Communist management.

Questions now being asked in London are:

How much tin will China be able to export to Russia after her own industrialisation programme requirements have been met and will it be enough to satisfy the Russian industry's current demands, and still enable them to build a stockpile against possible wartime needs?

The source of Russia's external tin supply has always been a mystery.

Before the world's free tin markets were opened towards the end of last year, each nation's tin imports were fixed by international agreement—and Russia was excluded.

When the free markets were reopened, the Anglo-American agreement to ban exports to Russia of "strategic materials"—of which tin comes high on the list—was still in force.

Meanwhile, Russia's domestic production of tin remains unknown. A "liberal" estimate of her production in 1939 was recently stated to be a thousand tons annually but a later estimate admittedly an "optimistic" one, gives the current production at about ten thousand tons annually.

No doubt the correct figure lies somewhere between the two estimates but it is clear that Russia has succeeded in developing her natural resources to an enormous extent.

RUSSIAN STOCKPILE

It is also believed that Russia has managed to build up a small stockpile from the surplus of 25,000 tons of tin supplied to them under the mutual aid programme during the war and since then, no doubt, at least a part of the satellite countries' allocations have found their way to Russia.

Another factor must be considered in estimating Russia's present stockpile of tin. How much was she able to obtain from ex-Japanese occupied Malaya, Indonesia and Siam up to the time she declared war on Japan?

As far as South China's tin industry is concerned, the bulk of the production comes from Yunnan tin fields. When the Communists swept into Yunnan they put an end to American ambitions in this area.

The American Reconstruction Finance Corporation had just signed a two-year contract with the Nationalist controlled Yunnan People's Development Corporation which owned the Yunnan tin fields for a considerable part of Yunnan's output.

This tin will now presumably go to Russia.

HUGE POTENTIAL

Besides the Yunnan tinfields, there are other big deposits in South China, mainly in Kwangsi and South Kiangsi. But tin experts believe that China's potential tin-producing areas were fully developed—and this would be beyond the resources of the present Communist regime for many years to come—China could become the world's biggest tin producing country.

What China has to gain by friendship with Russia it is obvious that Russia stands to gain still more.

Natural Rubber Drive Begins

Washington, Jan. 17.—A nation-wide newspaper magazine advertising campaign backed by rubber growers in Malaya, Ceylon and French Indo-China is starting this week to persuade Americans to use more natural rubber.

The campaign, directed by the British Rubber Development Board in London, will show that rubber sales in the United States, where synthetic rubber was widely introduced during the war, would give the Sterling area the chance to earn dollars needed to bridge the gap now filled by the Marshall Plan.

Knarf, Hanid See a Friend

By MAX TRELL

IT WAS a raw, cold November afternoon. The wind cut through the branches of the trees from which all the leaves were gone, and the gray sky threatened either rain or, more likely, snow.

Knarf and Hanid walked down to the brook and stopped at the spot where the willow hung over the dark water. For a moment or two they both peered up and down the bank, as if they didn't see him anywhere.

"No," said Hanid. At this she began calling in a loud voice: "Nep! King Nep!"

A minute later a little head wearing a green hat appeared from inside a cave formed by two moss-covered rocks just to one side of the willow. Knarf and Hanid stared at it once and ran over, shouting with joy.

"We thought you had gone away, King Nep!" Hanid exclaimed.

"Or gone to sleep for the winter," said Knarf.

"Not at all, not at all," replied the man addressed as King Nep. His full name was Neptune, king of the seven seas. But no one had called him by that name in hundred and hundreds of years. In fact, hardly anyone knew about him at all any more. He had moved away from the ocean, and he now lived very quietly by the small brook that flowed past Knarf and Hanid's garden.

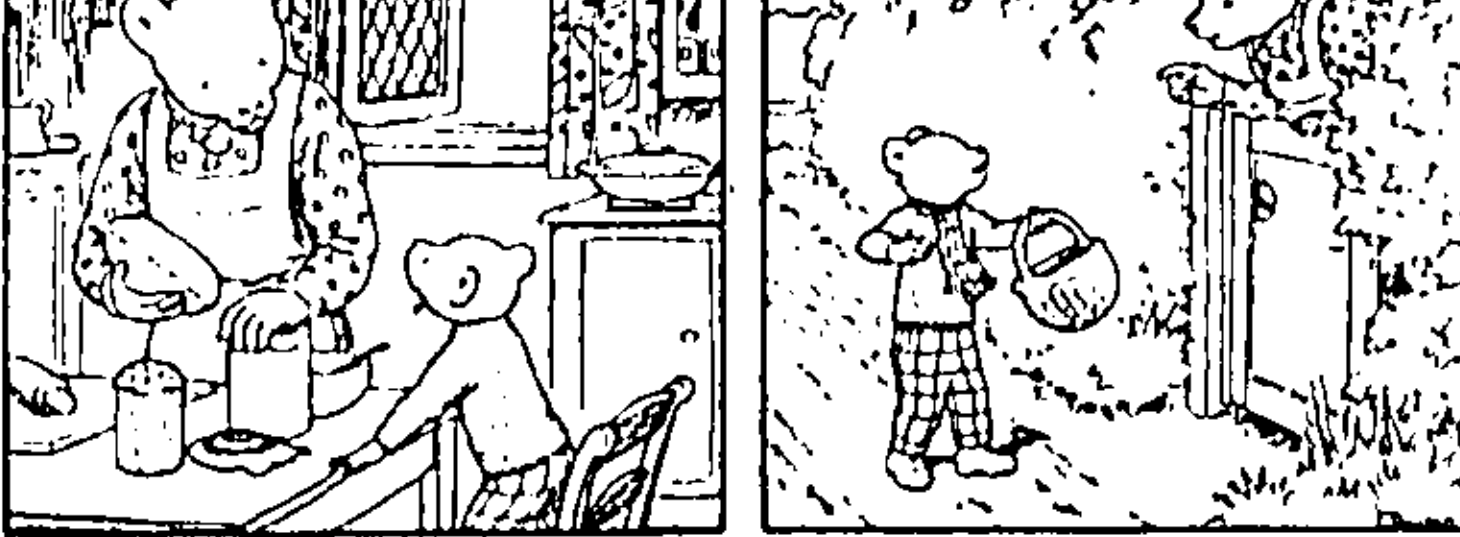

"Come in, my dears," he was saying. "I've fixed up my grotto a bit. It isn't exactly as pretty or as comfortable as I'd like to have it. But do come in and see for yourselves." Knarf and Hanid stooped down and crawled inside.

"Why, it's lovely!" Hanid said in surprise when she looked around.

It was indeed lovely. The cave—or grotto as King Nep called it—was all of rock with long greenish moss hanging down like ribbons. The floor was of pure white sand. There was a table and a large chair made of twisted coral. On the walls were starfish and sea-anemones and periwinkles; and small shells of all the colours of the Rainbow, were strung together like beads and hung from tiny hooks.

King Nep on his throne.

Rupert and the Snuff-box—7

Rupert runs home to give the parcel to his mother, and tells her the story of the silver snuff-box while she gets on with her preparations for cooking. "And no can I help you to stir the pudding?" he asks. "I'm not making that sort of pudding," smiles Mrs. Bear. "I don't need any help. If you've got ALL RIGHTS RESERVES

But the most extraordinary thing in the whole grotto was an enormous shell, glistening white, that stood on the table.

"It's my telephone," King Nep explained, smiling.

"Telephone?" Knarf and Hanid both said.

King Nep nodded. "It's connected right to the middle of the ocean. Just put your ear to it and you'll understand what I mean."

First, Knarf put his ear to it and listened, then Hanid, noticing the surprised look on her brother's face—listened, too. King Nep stood smiling until they spoke.

"I heard the sound of the waves!" said Knarf.

"It's the ocean all right," said Hanid.

Then they both listened some more.

"Some days," King Nep said, "I can hear the waves beating furiously together. Then I know there's a storm. But most of the time I just hear them murmuring... murmuring... and then I know that the sun is shining and it's a wonderful day. Now and then I hear the cry of the sea-gulls, and the splashing of a family of whales. But always, day and night, I can hear the sound of my waves, far, far away. It's wonderfully pleasant to have this telephone. It reminds me of the old days, so long ago. But don't you like my grotto? Don't you?" And Knarf and Hanid said they did—of course they did.

FINNS REPLY TO SOVIET DEMAND FOR EXTRADITION

Helsinki, Jan. 17.—The Finnish Government today formulated its reply to the Soviet Government memorandum demanding the extradition of 300 war criminals in accordance with the peace treaty. Finland's reply is to leave by special courier for Moscow tomorrow and will be handed to the Russian Government by Finland's Minister in Moscow, Mr Cay Sundstroem, on Saturday.

In her reply, Finland says that she has taken all the measures a sovereign state can by virtue of her Constitution, international law and the peace treaty. Finland's reply is to leave by special courier for Moscow tomorrow and will be handed to the Russian Government by Finland's Minister in Moscow, Mr Cay Sundstroem, on Saturday.

Discussions Open In Rome

Rome, Jan. 17.—Mr John Fletcher Cooke, the British delegate to the Trusteeship Council, which is drafting an agreement with Italy for the administration of Somaliland, today told the Committee that negotiations had already begun in Rome between Italy and Britain for the transfer of authority in the territory.

Mr Fletcher Cooke stated: "My Government regards it as most important and indeed essential that the Italian Government should take over the administration of the territory as soon as may be practicable."

The Committee today began its second reading of the draft agreement and adopted a note of the 24 articles of which it is composed. It is expected that the Committee will complete both the remaining articles of the agreement and the 10 articles of the annex tomorrow.

An additional article proposed by the British delegate concerning the transfer of authority in the territory, which will be discussed tomorrow.

ITALIAN OBJECTION

The Italian delegate, Signor Eusebio, declared that Italy reserved her position on the proposed article, which would transfer authority to the British, as it was not in accordance with the Italian peace treaty in a territory which will be administered on behalf of the United Nations and not a sovereign territory such as Italy.

The last article approved today laid down that Italy's fiduciary administration of the territory should commence from the date of the approval of the trusteeship agreement by the General Assembly.

Fiancee Linked With Farouk

Lake Success, Jan. 17.—Mr Zaki Hashim, 28-year-old Egyptian, whose fiancée's name has been linked with that of King Farouk, announced in a press conference here tonight that he had resigned his post as the United Nations Secretariat because of ill health.—Reuter.

Battle Of The Lamp

The "Battle of the Lamp" is over, and the cause of the trouble is now in St Martin's Church, Birmingham. Two years ago, Mr W. T. Hickman, a Birmingham Jeweller, who served with the 3rd Bn. Royal Warwickshire Regiment, made a lamp for the Old Comrades' Association. Apart from his annual use in the City Museum, the lamp was to be housed in the City Museum, but it was discovered this could not be done until £11 purchase tax was paid. The Board of Trade pointed out that if the lamp was placed in a church, no tax would have to be paid. It is now going to stand in St Martin's.

Ceremonial For Inauguration Of Indian Republic

STAFF CUT AT SPANDAU PROPOSED

Berlin, Jan. 17.—Drastic cuts in staff are proposed at Spandau Prison, Berlin, where the seven top Nazi war criminals are detained.

A spokesman for the West Berlin City Administration today said that there would be a reduction of staff and a cut in the cost of the prison.

The spokesman said that the Western Allies, who agreed to the West City authorities to reduce the prison's expenditure of 150,000 marks a year to 250,000 marks, had agreed to the cuts.

The spokesman said that the cuts would be made in the prison's staff and in the cost of the prison.

The City Administration just does not have the money to pay for the small army of well-paid men and women who care for the seven prisoners, and their ordinary prison only cost 2,000 marks annually, compared with the fortune we had to spend on the Spandau Nazis.

The seven top war criminals, are Rudolf Hess, Eric Raeder, Karl Doenitz, Baldur von Schirach, Konstantin von Neurath, Walter Funk and Albert Speer.—Reuter.

THREAT FROM SAME SOURCE

Hannover, Jan. 17.—Sir Brian Robertson, British High Commissioner for Germany, told a German audience here tonight that it would be wise for both Great Britain and Germany to forget their differences in face of a common peril.

"Both your country and mine, both your freedom and my freedom, your religion and my religion, and your civilisation and my civilisation are threatened from the same source," General Robertson said.—Reuter.

Albania Asked To Pay Up

London, Jan. 17.—The Foreign Office announced tonight that Britain, through the Albanian Minister in Paris, has asked the Albanian Government what steps it intends to take to pay the £243,947 damages awarded by the International Court of Justice for damage to two British destroyers in 1946. The destroyers were damaged by mines in the Corfu Channel by the loss of many lives.—Reuter.

No Secret Pact Over The Saar

Washington, Jan. 17.—The State Department spokesman, Mr Michael McDermott, today denied knowledge of any "secret agreement or understanding" between the United States, France and Britain over the Saar.

Press dispatches from London reported that the three Powers agreed during the meeting of the Western Foreign Ministers in Paris in November, to detach the Saar from Germany and give it semi-independence.

Mr McDermott said: "The only mention of the Saar at the November meeting occurred when M. Schuman reported the tentative suggestion of the Council of Europe that the Saar be extended an invitation to become an associate member."

Secretary of State Dean Acheson raised no objection to this, on the understanding that the action would not prejudice the final decision with respect to the Saar at the final peace settlement."

Mr McDermott said he did not know why this incident was not mentioned in the communiqué, but other officials said it might have been because all the Powers concerned wished to give the matter further consideration.

It was pointed out that the Council had not yet formally acted on the Saar's membership.

Mr McDermott refused to comment on the United States position of a reported French plan to take a 50-year lease on the Saar coal mines, but he said he would look into the matter and might have some comment later.—United Press.

INTELLIGENCE TEST SOLUTION

Let m be the number of members of the Squad prior to Bob's defection.

If three members of the Squad are chosen (say a, b, c) the fourth member (say d) will be one of the others. If the latter is d, the Squad is a, b, c, d. This is the same as if the original three had been say, a, b and d and c the one chosen from the others. Hence a, b, c and one other than Bob is (m-4)/3 times as likely as a, b, c and d.

So (m-4) = 3
m = 10

And there are now nine members of the Squad.
